(e) Priorities of the Health and Housing Task Force

Introduced by Lisa Bhopalsingh, Manager, Community and Cultural Planning.

Karen Kronstal, Social Planner, provided the Health and Housing Task Force members with feedback collected from task force members regarding their top priorities and goals for the Task Force. The following eight priorities were identified as most common between the members of the Task Force:

- Confirm existing plans/strategies
- Identify gaps in health and housing services
- Integrated approach
- More supportive housing
- Rising cost of marketing housing
- Public safety
- Communication and engagement
- Increased collaboration

Task Force discussion took place regarding:

- Types of supportive housing and designing programs that set people up for success
- Expectation of the Task Force and how, when and what recommendations can be brought to Council
- The importance of community engagement, communication and support; how to get support from the community on actions the task force wants to recommend to Council
- Creative solutions and the goal of Nanaimo becoming innovative and successful in solving the homeless crisis
- Inviting community stakeholders, employees of housing and service agencies, employment resources and others to speak to the Task Force
- The need to identify gaps in service providers
- Identifying the root cause of homelessness and how to best serve the individual on a case by case basis so they are successful in housing and job placement
- Lack of funding and resources for trauma victims on Snuneymuxw First Nation reserve to tackle issues of housing, pride in home ownership and counselling for trauma victims
- Mental health exclusive of substance abuse
